SEMINAR DESCRIPTION:

The seminar in January was the first event in the entire cycle of seminars accompanying the Open Eyes Economy Summit in 2017. The objective of the meeting was to hold a debate devoted to the crisis of values and ideas of the entities functioning in the economy, and to indicate the directions to be followed in order to fight the crisis. The meeting was also a result of expert team work, under the leadership of Professor Jerzy Hausner, PhD, on the elaboration of an authorial concept of the Firm-Idea. In the course of the meeting, inaugurated and hosted by the Dean of the Faculty of Public Economy and Administration of the Cracow University of Economics, Professor of the Cracow University of Economics, Stanislaw Mazur, PhD, there was a discussion on how the values are perceived by the representatives of various social science areas: economy, sociology, philosophy or psychology. The perspectives were clashed with the methods of defining the values by entrepreneurs – in the course of the seminar the issue was illustrated with practical examples by Krzysztof Gluc, PhD, Sadeckie Wodociagi and Artur Nowak-Goclawski, ANG Spoldzielnia Doradcow Kredytowych.

SEMINAR DESCRIPTION:

The seminar was focused on the Firm-Idea concept. The participants debated on the future that belongs to innovative organisations that become conscious, socially sensitive and active participants of a huge change that we can witness at the moment. The opening lecture entitled „The Firm-Idea – values in business”, which was introducing the conference subject matter, was held by Professor Jerzy Hausner, PhD. Bartłomiej Biga, PhD, talked about sharing the intellectual property by the enterprises and its respective advantages for business. The first part, moderated by Dorota Sobieniecka, the Director of Gdansk Business Club, was closed with an academic panel on intangible assets – „What you cannot touch but it can make you rich – intangible assets in company development”. The second part - a practical one - „The imperceptible is coming. How to modify business to win future” was hosted by Ewa Sowinska, the Deputy Chairman of the National Chamber of Chartered Auditors, and the introduction was made by Zuzanna Skalska – an analyst of trends in design, innovation and business, and Aneta Chybicka, PhD - a psychologist, coach and the Director of Instytut Miasta. The seminar was summarised during a discussion panel entitled „The end of capital as we know it, the time for the Firm-Idea”.

SEMINAR DESCRIPTION:

„It is time to replace the economy of greediness with the economy of values” – claim the authors of the Open Eyes Economy concept. And at the same time they foresee the occurrence of new points on the business map – Firm-Ideas, for whom the priorities include social responsibility, fair communication, and partnership with customers. Will the Open Eyes Economy revolutionise the modern economy? What kinds of managers do firms need today? Why the authoritarian management style is no longer compatible with current market reality?

6. 9 May 2017, Lodz, Aula of the Faculty of Management, University of Lodz, ul. Jana Matejki 22/26, 11.00–17.00.

The integrated urban revival – social, economic, material and spacial dimensions.

SPEAKERS:

- ◇ Professor Tadeusz Markowski – University of Lodz
- ◇ Professor Jerzy Hausner, PhD – Cracow University of Economics
- ◇ Professor Anna Karwinska, PhD – Cracow University of Economics
- ◇ Michal Kudlacz, PhD, – Cracow University of Economics

- ◇ Magdalena Wisniewska, PhD – University of Lodz, representative of the Architect’s Office in the Lodz Municipality
- ◇ Hanna Zdanowska – Mayor of Lodz
- ◇ Tomasz Czapla – Dean, Department of Management, University of Lodz.

SEMINAR DESCRIPTION:

The Lodz conference is to show, among others, how municipalities search for their own methods of revival within the existing financial and legal conditions, and further, to show how this approach is assessed through the prism of local economy and local communities with reference to post-industrial heritage of Lodz. It is particularly important to consider various stakeholders in the revitalization process, as their involvement in the undertaken activities is a prerequisite for the achievement of the targeted outcome, i.e. not only regeneration of the city tissue but an authentic revitalisation in the economic, social and spacial dimensions. The discussion will be rooted in theoretical concepts that present comprehensive systems of the developmental process interdependencies. Successful capture and understanding of their processes are the foundations for the determination of the distribution of advantages and economic and social costs of the anticipated regenerative urban process. Therefore, a comprehensive and reliable theoretical concept can be the basis for building local agreements and compromises within the framework of a publicly initiated revitalisation process.

7. 11 May 2017, Cracow, Cracow University of Economics

From transaction-driven to relations-driven finance.

SPEAKERS:

- ◇ Professor Jerzy Hausner, PhD

- ◇ Andrzej Klesyk, former CEO of PZU S.A
- ◇ Andrzej Chmielecki, Wyższa Szkoła Bankowa, Gdansk and KP Lewiatan
- ◇ Paweł Borys, CEO of Polski Fundusz Rozwoju (Polish Development Fund)
- ◇ Rafał Sulkowski, the Malopolski Fund for Social Economy

SEMINAR DESCRIPTION:

The main speaker will be Arnoud W.A. Boot - Professor at the University of Amsterdam at Corporate Finance and Financial Markets. In recent years, he mainly dealt with the transformations of the banking sector and the necessary changes in supervision and regulation. A lot of attention has been paid to advances in information technology and to the changes it causes in financial services, both positive and negative. Financial innovations are necessary, but they can cause significant increase in risk, both for individual institutions as well as for the financial and economic system, and for the clients. Many financial innovations make the financial institution's relationship with the client completely anonymous. This makes them extremely vulnerable to changing financial services providers by the customer and looking for the best deal conditions. Therefore, in the paper 'Understanding the future of banking' A. Boot will set up a relationship-driven and transaction-driven approach. The seminar will also be attended by financial industry practitioners and researchers, including present and former CEOs of banks and insurance companies. The discussion will focus on the success factors in the functioning of the financial institution in the market, the better understanding of its customers and the appropriate tailoring for them, not only in the technological sense. To achieve such a state, according to prof. Boot, financial institutions need more ethics in their business and demonstrate a genuine understanding with their clients.

8. 18 May 2017, Nowy Sacz, State University of Applied Sciences in Nowy Sacz, Aula of Library ,PWSZ, Aleja Wolności 40

TA turquoise organisation – in the search for a new management model.

- ◇ Krzysztof Saczka, Director of ZUS (Social Insurance Office) in Nowy Sacz
- ◇ Jan Golba, PhD, the Mayor of Muszyna
- ◇ Adam Dudek, Chairman of the Supervisory Board, Bank Polskiej Spółdzielczosci

SEMINAR DESCRIPTION:

The seminar is held, first of all, with the target of business sector representatives but also with public sector in mind. The objective of the organised event is to explain the idea of „turquoise organisations” that implement avant-garde management methods devoid of internal hierarchy or motivational systems. The addressed model brings about many changes in the system of business entity functioning but the experience shows that it is very efficient. The meeting will be divided into two parts: the first one will be focused on the presentation of the idea in practice while the other one will be a panel discussion devoted to the presented model. Speakers of the first part: Professor Jerzy Hausner, PhD, Professor Andrzej Blikle, PhD, and the representatives of Kamsoft Podlasie sp. z o.o. and Marco sp. z o.o. – companies that are managed in the “turquoise” style. In the second part, the panel discussion will be held by Professor Jerzy Hausner, with the participation of business sector and public administration representatives. The introduction of new solutions involves many discussions and debates. That is also the assumption of the organised event; to present the „turquoise organisation” idea to the entities interested in the work efficiency improvement in their organisations, and then, to discuss the advantages and disadvantages of the innovative organisation management model.
